

Earn trust before you standardize.

A practical entry plan for a Bravo Director joining a portfolio of growth-stage brands. The plan assumes the exact client mix and SOWs will vary; milestones are designed around engagement leadership rather than a single operating context.

0-30

Read & earn trust

Outcome: a shared picture of the system and the engagement.

- Review SOW, objectives, budgeted hours, current deliverables, and Bravo team roles.
- Meet founder/CEO, finance, sales, operations, and key external partners.
- Shadow current operating cadences and tactical work.
- Map demand, production, procurement, inventory, fulfillment, cash, partners, systems, data, and decision rights.
- Define the top service, cash, margin, quality, and partner risks.
- Establish client communication norms and escalation expectations.
- Build a 30-day learning agenda and validate assumptions visibly.

31-60

Stabilize & instrument

Outcome: fewer surprises and faster decisions around the real constraints.

- Stand up an exception cadence for shortages, late production, inventory discrepancies, OTIF risk, and cash-critical buys.
- Create one-owner/one-next-action discipline for critical constraints.
- Repair the few data definitions that block useful decisions.
- Implement partner issue aging and escalation paths.
- Build the initial operating scorecard and decision calendar.
- Clarify delegation to junior Bravo team members and coach on expected outcomes, not task volume alone.
- Review client hours against SOW value and risk.

61-90

Build & transfer

Outcome: the client and Bravo team can run the mechanism without constant senior intervention.

- Codify the minimum viable forecasting/S&OP, inventory, partner, cost, and systems routines appropriate to the client stage.
- Document decision rights, escalation thresholds, and standard work in the client's actual tools.
- Train and observe the people inheriting daily execution.
- Review outcome evidence against SOW, budget, and client expectations.
- Close gaps in ownership and partner accountability.
- Agree next-state roadmap: maintain, deepen, re-scope, or hand off.
- Capture reusable lessons for Bravo without exposing client-confidential information.

CROSS-CLIENT OPERATING DISCIPLINE

Protect senior attention from noise.

Across 2-4 clients, I would maintain a bounded portfolio view of consequence, cash exposure, decision latency, SOW commitment, and team load. The purpose is not to create a universal score. It is to make the weekly allocation of senior attention explicit and discussable.
